NEW INVESTIGATOR AWARD - DEADLINE EXTENDED UNTIL APRIL 17, 2017

Senior graduate students and post docs who have a substantial story to tell about their research program may apply to present their work in The New Investigator's Symposium. A subset of the Education and Program Committees select the winners of these awards. New Investigator applications require three letters of recommendation. You can send your letter writers via this form.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT AT SBN 2017

The professional development committee would like to draw member attention to some of the programming planned for the upcoming meeting.

SYMPOSIUM ON REPRODUCTIVE NEUROENDOCRINOLOGY - JUNE 19, 2017

Dear Colleagues,

I am writing to announce our 2017 Center for Neuroendocrine Studies Symposium on the occasion of Jeff Blaustein's official retirement in May. The UMass Center for Neuroendocrine Studies, with support from the College of Natural Sciences and the Department of Psychological and Brain Sciences, will host an all-day Symposium to honor Jeff and his contributions to UMass and to the field on May 19, 2017. Collaborators, former trainees, and friends will share new developments and reflect on Jeff's many contributions.

The event is titled a 'Symposium on Reproductive Neuroendocrinology' and will be held in the newly-renovated UMass chapel!
