SBN ELECTION 2015

SOLICITING REVIEW ARTICLES

The SBN leadership has agreed to sponsor a short, popular article on a topic of public interest and relevant to SBN's interests, on ActionBioscience.org. ActionBioscience is a highly trafficked, free, educational website hosted by the American Institute of Biological Sciences (AIBS). The goal is educating students and the public about science relevant to our society's concerns, and informing them about the role our society plays. Articles should be no longer than 2,500 words. The author must also provide art with copyright clearance and references checked and cited per ActionBioscience style. This is a great opportunity to highlight the importance of our field. If you are interested in writing an article, please send along your suggestions to Rae Silver, Chair, Public Education Committee (Rae.Silver@columbia.edu)

SEEKING NOMINATIONS FOR CHAIR OF THE SBN WEBSITE COMMITTEE

We are now soliciting nominations (self or otherwise) for chairperson of the SBN Website Committee. Please email Cheryl Sisk (sisk@msu.edu) with nominations. We thank Todd Ahern for serving as the chair of the Website Committee for the past 5 years during which time the website was redesigned and vastly improved. If you are interested in this opportunity and would like more information on the responsibilities of the committee and its chair, please contact Todd at todd.ahern@quinnipiac.edu.

NEWS FROM NIH

The NIH has been developing policies that require sex as a biological variable in biomedical research. SBN, via the Public Education Committee, submitted a response to the RFI. Now the Analysis of Public Comments has been released by NIH.
